Mona Merlo to Lead New Sato Academy

Mona Merlo, the tenth child in a family of 12, grew up in a town of 600 people in rural South Dakota. The girl who graduated in a class of 24 students and drove tractors during her summer vacations could never have imagined that she would become principal of an innovative small high school in the third largest school district in California.

Kris Thornton Believes In Investing in the Future

Maybe it was his father, an aerospace engineer, who taught him to shoot for the stars. Or maybe it's his job in the home mortgage business, with the ups and downs of the real estate market that keeps him focused on the long term.

Peggy Williams, Measure K Program Consultant

Peggy Williams has lived in Long Beach for the past five years, although her connections to the city and the district go much further back. Her grandmother moved to Long Beach as a young child, attended LBUSD elementary and middle schools and was a 1932 graduate of Wilson High School where she was an active member of the swimming/dive team.
